HEADCOUNT AND BOBO'S BRING #VOTELocal CAMPAIGN TO SUMMER CAMP

Fans at Annual Music Festival Will Receive Free Oat Bars to Celebrate Local Elections

CHILLICOTHE, IL – Do you know when your next election is? If the answer is no, you're not alone. While 60% of eligible Americans turned out to vote in the Presidential election last year, including about half of Americans age 18 to 29, turnout in all other elections is far lower.

Barely 1 out of 5 Americans votes in municipal or local elections. For Americans under age 29, turnout for local elections is estimated at five percent or less.

That's why the non-partisan organization HeadCount and the Boulder, CO-based oat bar brand BOBO's will be at the Summer Camp Music Festival in Chillicothe, IL (May 26-28), helping Millennial voters learn when the next election will be in their hometowns.

HeadCount has registered thousands of voters at Summer Camp over the last decade. In fact, last year Summer Camp ranked in the top ten in total voters registered for the organization, out of more than 65 festivals across the country.

This year, HeadCount will not only register new voters but also invite attendees to sign up for TurboVote local election alerts. TurboVote, which serves all 50 states, sends a text message and email alerting voters about upcoming elections.

Summer Camp attendees will also be invited to participate in a massive photo campaign where both fans and performing artists take photos holding a special Summer Camp #VoteLocal sign and share it on social media.

Anyone who takes a photo holding the #VoteLocal sign will receive a free oat bar from BOBO's, a brand known for their healthy and locally-sourced ingredients.

"Local elections are starting to get more attention than ever, but if they don't happen in November most people don't know when they are," said HeadCount's Executive Director Andy Bernstein. "By offering convenient text alerts, some fun photos, and handing out free BOBO's bars, we're literally making it a treat to be a local voter."

“BOBO’s is incredibly excited to partner with such a great organization in HeadCount at the Summer Camp Music Festival to drive conversation and engagement in local elections, “said Beryl Stafford, Founder and President of BOBO’s.

Summer Camp will feature performances by Trey Anastasio of Phish, Primus, Zeds Dead, and two festival mainstays: moe. and Umphrey’s McGee. It will also include a “Make a Difference” area where various non-profit organizations will interact with fans to creating a positive social impact. Fans who take part in a “Treasure Hunt” visiting the organizations and taking other actions, can receive special access to a private performance by the Everyone Orchestra.
